POLICY FOR BEST EXECUTION OF ORDERS

The Securities Market and Investment Services Act (hereinafter “LMVSI”), in its Article 218 establishes that investment companies, when executing customer orders, must adopt the adequate measures to obtain the best possible result for their customers, and must have an order execution policy. In turn, the Policy will establish the conditions under which, customer orders must be executed or transferred to other intermediaries.

So that CAJASUR can provide its customers with the execution service and due to its limited operational structure, it contracts all the financial instruments with Kutxabank. As a result of this, it will be Kutxabank’s Best Execution Policy that meets the need to comply with the best execution requirements of the Securities Market Act. In this way CAJASUR fulfils the requirement to adopt all reasonable measures to obtain the best result when executing customers’ orders.

On executing the orders of customers, Kutxabank takes account of the characteristics of customers, including their classification as retail customers or professional customers, and also of the characteristics of the order, the characteristics of the financial instruments concerned by the order, and of any execution venues or intermediaries of which customers may avail themselves.

The stipulations of the Policy shall be applicable to financial instruments as they are defined in Annex I of the LMVSI. The Policy shall be applicable to any financial instruments in relation to which Kutxabank provides this service at any given time.

Under the Policy, Kutxabank currently provides the following investment services, in due consideration of positions:

- Party receiving and transmitting customer orders, which shall require proper selection of the intermediary/-ies executing the orders. This shall be carried out for equity income, ETFs, warrants, a number of fixed-income instruments and some derivatives on organised markets in which Kutxabank is not a direct participant, and therefore transmits customer orders to a third party for execution.
- Party executing orders on behalf of customers, directly at an execution venue and also against its own portfolio, where it undertakes market risks and acts as the customer’s counterparty. This shall be carried out for some derivatives on organised markets in which Kutxabank is a direct participant.

The table in the Annex provides a non-exhaustive list of the Trading Venues used by Kutxabank to execute its orders. Any other venue not on the list, however, may be selected in accordance with the criteria stipulated in the policies for selection of Trading Venues.

Kutxabank’s Best Execution Policy shall apply to all retail customers and professional customers. It shall not apply to eligible counterparties. The criteria prevailing in the case of retail customers shall be the “total consideration” criterion.

In accordance with Article 222.2 of the LMVSI, the optimum outcome shall chiefly be determined by taking account of the total consideration composed of the price of the financial instruments and the costs relating to execution, which shall include all the expenses incurred by the customer that are directly related to execution of the order, including the fees of the execution venue, clearing and settlement fees and other fees paid to third parties involved in execution of the order. With respect to professional customers, factors other than those contemplated for retail customers shall be considered, such as the speed or likelihood of execution due to the large volumes of trading they carry out, but the commissions charged by Kutxabank for any reason in the transaction for the purposes of verifying best execution shall not be incorporated at any time.

When the customer transmits a specific instruction as to where or how it wishes to execute an order, amending one of the priorities already described, these instructions shall prevail over the aspects set out in the Policy as far as possible, provided Kutxabank has the means and channels for execution that enable it to carry out the customer’s specific instruction. For the other attributes of the transaction which have no instructions, the precepts of the Policy that may be applicable shall be adhered to.

In these cases the customer shall be warned that any specific instruction may, with respect to the items affected by the instruction, prevent Kutxabank from taking the measures stipulated in the context of the Policy to secure the best possible outcome in execution of the orders. In any case, Kutxabank shall attempt to secure the best possible outcome in accordance with these instructions.

Consent on the Policy may be tacit. Commencement of operations by the customer shall be understood as such.

Kutxabank shall run a regular check on the efficiency of the Policy and the quality of execution of the companies involved, and shall conduct a review of the Policy on an annual basis, and whenever a material change is made that may affect the Policy.

When it acts as the party executing orders, Kutxabank shall demonstrate to its customers (at their request) that the orders have been executed in accordance with the Best Execution Policy established, and this demonstration shall consist of a check to ensure that the principles and aspects set out in the Policy in relation to execution procedures have been adhered to.
